Lumiere Wins Best Development at Uk Property Awards 2007

Innovators West Properties won a staggering five awards at the prestigious Daily Mail UK Property Awards 2007, held this year at a glittering gala dinner at the Royal Lancaster Hotel in London on Friday 5th October.

The property company scooped four-star awards in the categories of Best High Rise Architecture and Best Development for their Skyline Central development; Best Apartment and Best Development for their Lumiere development and an outstanding five-star award in the category of Best Apartment for Skyline Central.

The Daily Mail UK Property awards are now in their third year and are part of a global property competition, which seeks to distinguish the highest levels of excellence in a range of property related fields.

Entries for this years awards were judged by a panel of professionals with a superior collective knowledge of the property industry. Chaired by Eric Pickles, British Shadow Secretary of State, this year's judges included Imtiaz Farookhi, chief executive of the National House Building Council, Peter Bolton King, chief executive of the National Association of Estate Agents; and Phil Spencer property expert and presenter of Channel 4's Location and Relocation TV shows.

Since inception West Properties has successfully set new standards for residential developments. Unique buildings and aspirational lifestyles are delivered through high specification, fusing true luxury with contemporary cool in prime city centre locations.

Ben Richardson from West Properties comments: "Everyone at West Properties is so pleased their hard work has been rewarded through such esteemed awards. We are very passionate about our properties and are constantly striving to provide cutting edge urban developments across the UK. With exciting new developments under construction already, we hope to win many more national awards in years to come."
